The Prison Service.

At the Prison on Sunday last, R. E. Rogers, of Haverly's Minstrels, kindly consented to sing with the choir. He also recited "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." At the close of the service Mrs. H. H. Howe and Mr. Rogers sang as a duet, "Jesus, Savior of My Soul." The prisoners were greatly pleased, and warmly thanked the parties through the Chaplain, for their kindness. Several of the prisoners said they hoped to hear Rogers at the Opera House if he came again in a few years.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Tonight this old favorite of three generations will be presented at the Opera House. The famous Hyer sisters who sang here in opera years ago are in the cast, along with mules and blood hounds. The theater-goers will signal the return of Piper to the Opera House with a packed audience.

A Horrible Story.

THE PROSPECT WELL.

Work Stopped Pending Mrs. Langtry's Arrival.

On Saturday, sinking in the prospect well on Mrs. Langtry's land North of the city was abandoned, the borers having received word from Mrs. Langtry to cease operations until she could personally inspect the property in June.

The borers were not adverse to stopping work, as the last tube put down was stopped by the slate wall, and the prospecting beyond that point was done with the drill alone. The last twelve feet was in very tough clay, and the hole being very small the clay stuck to the sides of the drill, and progress was not only very slow, but got slower every foot.

In drilling, two heavy stringers of quartz were passed through, one wall of slate 20 feet thick, and work was stopped in clay.

Mining experts consider the formations encountered as favorable to a good ledge below. The quartz contained no silver. The only mineral found was magnetic iron.

While the stoppage of the work without a silver discovery at that point will be a disappointment to Carson people, the work has stimulated others to prospect, and several small shafts have been started and gold stringers found on the mountain, all of which give good assays.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 12th, 1888. Senator Ingalls' ringing speech in the Senate on Tuesday was the political event of the week. It was straight from the shoulder, every sentence representing a knockdown blow against the Democratic party. It was all the Senate officials could do to keep down the enthusiastic applause of the crowded galleries during its delivery.

Many old soldiers listened attentively while the Kansas Senator flayed the Administration and the Democratic party, and the expression of their faces was all the evidence needed of their supreme enjoyment of the well deserved flagellation. They were particularly pleased with the Senator's reference to Cleveland, whose many slurs upon them in connection with the pension vetoes last year have neither been forgotten nor forgiven.

Here's the Kansas Senator's opinion of Cleveland:

"The nomination and election of Grover Cleveland has made the pretensions of any American citizen to the Presidency respectable. There is no man in this country whose ignorance is so profound, whose obscurity so impenetrable, whose antecedents so degraded, that he has not the right to aspire to the Presidential nomination—by the Democratic party."

Referring to the question asked by Senator Vest in his speech last week "where is this Pension business to stop?" Mr. Ingalls said, "It is going to stop when the arrears of pensions are paid; when the limitation is removed and every soldier on the rolls or who gets on the rolls, is paid from the day of his disability, or, in case of a survivor, from the day of the soldier's death; and when every surviving soldier of the Union Army is put on the rolls for service only. That is when it is going to stop. And if you don't like it, make the most of it."

Referring to the pending pension bill he said: "I hope it will pass the other House of Congress; and if it does, let the President of the United States veto it at his peril."

It remained for a Republican to take the initiative in stopping the patent medicine men and cigarette people from making use of Mrs. Cleveland's picture as an advertisement. Mr. Thomas, of Ill., has introduced a bill in the House which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a heavy fine for any person or firm to use a woman's likeness as an advertisement without her written consent.

Here is a little specimen of democratic stupidity. The Secretary of War reported to the Senate that so many errors had been made in printing the abstract of the militia force of the country as recently reported to Congress, that the document was worthless. The Senate has ordered the Public Printer to re-print the document. That's the way Benedict economizes.

Another failure in the treaty line is to be charged up to the Administration. This time it is John Chinaman who has enchered little Tommy Bayard. The new treaty will be sent to the Senate at once. It prohibits the importation of Chinese laborers into this country in one paragraph, but opens wide the doors for them in another, which it is understood was prepared by the Chinese minister here. It allows all Chinamen residing in the United States, who have accumulated property to the value of $1000 or more to visit China and return to this country as often as they please. Any one at all acquainted with Chinese character will readily understand that the average Chinamen will have no compunction in swearing that he is worth $1000 or any other sum if can gain a privilege by so doing.

The Republican minority of the House Ways and Means Committee have struggled manfully to get a hearing for the various industries which are effected by the Mill's tariff bill, but so far is vain. They are afraid that they might be convinced of the absurdity of the hedge-podge they have concocted. R.

THE TROUBLE SETTLED.

Piper Goes Back to the Opera House.

The dead lock between John Piper and the Opera House management is settled and as will be seen by the announcement in another column, the Uncle Tom's Cabin Troupe will open in the Opera House.

This will be good news to the theater goers as much inconvenience has been occasioned by the change to the Old Theater which was small and the seating capacity totally inadequate for a first-class performance.

On what terms the hatchet was buried the APPEAL is not informed, but it is satisfactory to both parties.
